Winter concerts play key role in Festival's in-school education programs.

Jackson Hole, Wyoming – January 6, 2010 – With a $10 ticket price (students are free), a new one-hour format, and the return of world-class performers, the Grand Teton Music Festival's winter concerts are more exciting than ever! The Festival's annual winter concert series begins with a fanfare ON STAGE on Friday, January 15 as the Chicago-based group, Axiom Brass, presents a virtuosic program guaranteed to make musical fireworks on the stage of Walk Festival Hall. The winter series is rounded out by performances featuring the Festival's esteemed musicians in performances of classical chamber music for String Quartet (Friday, February 12), and Woodwinds and Piano (Friday, March 26). Details follow at the end of this release. The Festival's winter concerts also make a significant impact IN OUR CLASSROOMS as a vital component of the Grand Teton Music Festival's year-round education programs, bringing visiting artists into local schools.

Grand Teton Music Festival winter concerts are one hour in length without intermission and take place at 7:30 PM in Walk Festival Hall. $10 Adults, Free for Students (ages 6-18 or with valid ID). Tickets are required for all performances: 307-733-1128 or www.gtmf.org.

Make sure to come to the Village early to take advantage of exclusive pre-concert dining-deals offered by participating restaurants on performance evenings. From 20% off your entire bill to

GRAND TETON MUSIC FESTIVAL EDUCATION & OUTREACH PROGRAMS

The Grand Teton Music Festival believes music is fundamental to the human experience, and achieves this vision not only through great performances, but also through a commitment to educational programming. The Festival reaches out to people of all levels of interest and ability through its education and outreach initiatives. From a child's first experience attending a live performance, to advanced instruction for music students, to continuing education for adult learners, these programs reach more than 12,000 young students, musicians, and adults each year.

The majority of the Grand Teton Music Festival's education and outreach initiatives provide music and education experiences to the youth of Jackson Hole and the surrounding regions. School year programming includes: StringFest (three-day clinic for eighth grade string students), Tune-UP! (private instrument lessons for middle school band and orchestra students), Music In The Schools (Festival musicians visit local classrooms), and Open the House: GTMF Presents (Jackson Hole High School Band and Orchestra perform their spring concerts in Walk Festival Hall). Annual summer programming features the popular 6:15 Music Machine (a free orchestra concert for children and families at Walk Festival Hall), and an Orchestra Mentorship Program (career shadowing for advanced high school instrumental music students).
